Elorrio, 26 June 2026. EROSKI Group has reached an agreement for the sale of its service station business to PETROPRIX, Spain's leading low-cost fuel retailer with an international presence in more than five countries. The transaction, for which EROSKI was advised by Deloitte and Lawesome, provides for the transfer of the group's 40 service stations, subject to the fulfilment of the conditions agreed by both parties, which are customary for transactions of this nature.

The 40 service stations will be incorporated into the PETROPRIX network, strengthening its presence in the regions where EROSKI currently operates: Andalusia, Aragon, Asturias, Cantabria, Castile and León, Catalonia, Galicia, the Balearic Islands, La Rioja, Navarre and the Basque Country. PETROPRIX's experience operating this type of network will support continued network operations and customer service.

The decision comes at a time of transformation within the energy and mobility sectors, driven by changing consumer habits and increasing operator specialisation. Against this backdrop, EROSKI believes PETROPRIX has the capabilities and experience required to support the future development of this business activity while continuing to advance its commitment to making affordable fuel available to a wider number of drivers.

Operational continuity and support for people

Completion of the transaction is expected by the end of this year, subject to the fulfilment of the customary conditions applicable to transactions of this nature. During this period, EROSKI will ensure the continued operation of the service stations and the maintenance of normal business activity, with no impact on the Group's food retail operations or on the shopping experience of its customers.

The integration of the service stations into the PETROPRIX network will help maintain a competitive offering for consumers and ensure continuity of service at their current locations, while also maintaining their complementary relationship with nearby EROSKI stores. Following completion of the transaction, PETROPRIX will expand its network of low-cost service stations to 245 sites across Spain, Portugal, Chile and Panama.

As part of this new phase, the cooperative will continue to focus its strategy on developing its food retail network, strengthening its convenience and franchise formats, promoting fresh and locally sourced products, helping families save money and advancing its transformation and efficiency initiatives, in line with its commitments to healthy eating, local prosperity and environmental sustainability.

In 2025, EROSKI Group consolidated a new phase in its development following the completion of its refinancing process and the normalisation of its financial structure, closing the year with sales of €6.081 billion and an omnichannel retail network comprising 1,508 outlets.
